

ABSTRACTCOUNTERFEITING LIFE-SAVING DRUGS: HOW INDIAN LAW TACKLES THE DILEMMA?NAMRATA CHAKRABORTY & SOMNATH BANERJEE

As the death toll raises its magnitude, the business with drugs is carried on with a positive gradient. Today, drugs overpower diseases in terms of ferocity and express the grudges on the Globalization as well as Consumers' lives. India being the beehive of corruption does not delay in ruling the regime of drugs ferocity and hence shapes it in the form of "Counterfeiting". Usually, People consume medicines to save their lives from diseases. But the notion reverses as the era of corruption advances. Hence, life-saving drugs are the modern dilemma than the life-threatening diseases. The irony blooms steadfastly as the Counterfeited Drugs Sector in India is surveyed to have more ruling over the International Market than the Generic Pharma Industry. The present world faces 75 % spurious drugs as rooted from Indian Sector which causes estimated 4000 dead bodies in every year and honours the Indian Pharmaceutical Industry as the most corrupted and counterfeited Sector as well. Further, where the Indian Constitution attempts to maintain the spirit of Rule of Law through the eternal Constitutionalism; the pandemic terror lying in Drugs Counterfeiting continues to protract its scope towards the worldwide region due to crisis of regulatory procedure in the Pharma Domain. Hence, this research paper attempts to unite the anti-counterfeiting laws implemented by Indian Legislature for the purpose of analyzing their essence and protecting the living beings from the pressing dilemma.
